

Robert Sandoval (Clovis East) 2010 – Robert was the cream of the crop at this weekend's event. Robert can do it all. He will try and take your heart from you when he plays, which is hard to find in athletes of his generation. He is a phenomenal ball-handler, can control the game as a leader, and was knocking down the mid range shot. He also showed some bounce with his athleticism that was not shown at last year's event. If he continues to improve his 3-point shot, mixed with his court game, he is going to have a great college career.

Rashad Jackson (Thompson Jr. High) 2015 – That is right, this is the first 8th grader to attend one of our "Finest Events" and Rashad had no trouble holding his own. He has great feel for the game, long, and can get to the basket. He was very confident with his shot, even though it wasn't consistently hitting. It shows he has confidence and going to be a very high level player in the year's to come.

Rakim Brown (Central) 2010 – "Rocky" on one possession can raise eyebrows with his smooth skill level, and the next can have you saying he is out of control. With that said, once he knows how to change speeds depending on certain situations, he is going to be a very hard person to guard. A definitely college prospect since he can shoot the ball and can finish around the rim.

Antwon Whitfield (Clovis East) 2010 – Antwon had a great weekend shooting the ball. He is a pure perimeter shooter, however, when you play with Robert Sandoval, you will be getting a lot of open looks. He shot the ball with confidence, worked very hard during the skill sessions and should be a key component for Coach Amundson at Clovis East this upcoming year.

Tim Billingsley (Bakersfield) 2012 – Tim was the sleeper player at this year's event. Though undersized, he can flat out get it done. He has picture perfect form and was hitting from deep all weekend. However, he is no one-trick pony, as he would use his pump fake to get to the basket or hit the mid range shot. Tim is undersized, however, a high D2 level player and should have a huge year for his team.

Rodney Webster (Hanford West) 2010 – Rodney was one of the most competitive players in the gym. He has a very strong body and quick with the ball. Just about everyone in camp had troubles with his handles and his foot speed. Should be one of the top PGs in the valley area, however, needs to improve his decision making and shot to play at the next level.

Randall Jackson (Garces) 2012 – Randall is a fierce competitor that worked extremely hard during the drills session. His hand speed is off the charts, which allows his moves and ball-handling to be at a high level. He also showed that he can be a lock down defender during the games sessions. He got to the basket, however, needs to become a better finisher and needs to continually work on his outside shot.

Josue Salaam (Hanford West) 2014 – All of the coaches had to double take when they noticed that he is only a freshman. Josue game is very silent, however, that is after he was dropping 3-4 three-pointers each game. He was very consistent all weekend and was on the top shooters. As he gets older, more mature, his game should expand to all facets and should be a college prospect.

Jordan Belton (San Benito HS) 2012 – A combo guard that showed much improvement in his 3 point shot. Absolutely one of the hardest players at camp that caused havoc on defense. Was very aggressive taking it to the basket and finished against bigger defenders. Very aggressive on both ends and competes relentlessly.

Lonnie Watson Jr. (Paso Robles) 2010 – A long guard that had a great weekend. Played very hard and was aggressive on the offensive end. If he could improve his shot selection will be that much better. Competed and made plays and looks fully healthy for the first time in a long while.

Cody Brice (Hanford West) 2010 – Had a great weekend, showcasing soft hands, nimble feet, and polished post moves. Cody is 6'8", can really pass the ball out of the post and a great shooter. Once Cody develops conditioning, will be a great get at the D2 level.

Carl Goodman (Bullard) 2011 – The word that sums up Carl is Bouncy! Carl had a smile on his face all weekend, playing every opportunity he could get in order to work on his game. He is a great competitor, capable defender, and was hanging around the rim all weekend.

Darnell Johnson (Bullard) 2010 – Big time competitor who simply was a joy to have around. A football basketball guy that came out after his Friday night's football game and simply got after it. A relentless motor for a wide body Wing/Forward that showed a great deal of skill. Handled it, rebounded it, and got every loose ball. A great athlete who has a bright future both on the hardwood and gridiron.

Saig Horn (Clovis East) 2010 – A combo guard that has really improved his game. A lights out shooter in the Clovis East system, Saig showed this past weekend that he has a lot of feel for the game and can play PG. He will be a deadly second PG/combo with Robert Sandoval this upcoming year. Saig competed the entire weekend and simply made plays.

Tyler Gosling (Ripon Christian) 2010 – A forward who flat out competed both days. Tyler worked so hard and was very active as he bounced around and rebounded with an intensity. Scored around the basket and really showed his mobility and quickness throughout the weekend.

Shaquille Wilson (Foothill) 2011 – A long slender 6'8 athlete that oozes with potential. If Shaquille can tap into that potential and really work on his skills he will have a bright future. Has the ability down the road to play multiple positions if he continues to work and get stronger. Will have a very good year with the athleticism and length he possesses.

Jason Carmichael (Mt. Whitney) 2010 – Very strong point guard that is very crafty and skilled. Was sick on Day 1, however, came on Day 2 and let his presence known. Very quick handles and a decent shooting stroke.

Rayshon Snowden (San Joaquin Memorial) 2012 – Rayshon is a young player that has a lot of upside. Though he didn't perform extraordinary over the weekend, he did show that he is an up and coming talent in the Central California area.